In a timely article on our timber re calls the attention of the land-owners of the State to the rising value of the'r forests, and earnestly advises them against the havowhich, for so many years, they have permitted to be worked to their interests in this direction. The position taken by the Virginian is thoroughly in accord with the warning with reference to the same subject, which was thrown out by THE TIMES many months ago, and even the comparatively brief interval that has passed since, has done much to add to the force of the words which we then employed to show the growing necessity for the exercise of a larger degree of caution and economy in the disposition of our timber. Upon the people of no part of the State should such a warning make a deeper impression than upon those who own land in othside Virginia, where our most valua ble and extensive forests are to be found, and where, owing to the character of the soil, the land owners should be especially careful to husband every resource which they pos- the Southwest, are yet bent upon utilizing sess. DO YOU WANT A SET Encyclopædia Britannica?

JOIN OUR CLUB,

Dollar Each Week YOU WILL SOON HAVE IT.

At the request of several customers, we have decided to offer the Encyclopædia Britannica on the above liberal terms to those who cannot afford to pay out forty-five dollars at once, at same price, by paying one dollar per week for forty-five weeks.

As every member is required to give satisfactory security for his future weekly payments when he receives his set of Britannica, the other members of the Club are not held responsible for any delinquencies, but will receive their sets in due order, as long as they pay their own dues of one dollar per week. By this plan every one who wants a set of the Encyclopaedia can secure one and pay for it without feeling the cost, and still only pay the lowest cash price for it.

JOIN AT ONCE. Hand your name in, and as soon as this number is secured (forty-five for each club) the payments will begin, and you may have your set in one week.
